THE WATCH NIGHT SERVICES

THE IMPRESSIVE MOMENTS OF THE OLD AND NEW.

Large Congregations Assembled and the Midnight Moments Were Spent in Silent Prayer.

The services last night at West Market church as the old century passed away and the new one came in were solemn and impressive. The music by the choir was in perfect accord with the spirit of the occasion, and the prayers and talks breathed the purpose of advancement along all lines of church work during the coming century so auspiciously ushered in.

Short addresses were made by Rev. J. R. Scroggs on the Sunday school, Prof. L. W. Crawford on the Epworth League, Prof. P. P. Claxton on schools and colleges and Rev. H. K. Boyer on foreign and domestic missions. Dr. S. B. Turrentine, the pastor of the church, made a few remarks on the Twentieth Century movement, but as the time was limited, desired that the remainder be taken up in the love feast, not because he undervalued the importance of the movement, but because the principal point had been enlarged upon by the other speakers.

The love feast was then administered by the stewards, who served the congregation with bread and water, which were taken to show the brotherly love existing.

Refreshments, consisting of coffee and doughnuts, were served in two of the class-rooms to the entire assemblage.

A few minutes before the clock struck twelve the bell of the church was tolled and during these last few minutes of the old and the first few minutes of the new century the congregation was bowed in silent prayer. At the close of the prayer the Long Metre Doxology was sung and the benediction pronounced by Rev. J. R. Scroggs.

It would be a good plan to have a watch service every new year if each one would be as great a blessing to those who attend and was the service at Grace Methodist Protestant church last night. A large percentage of the congregation expressed their gratitude to the Creator for His wonderful gifts to the children of men.

In the second part of the service special prayer was made that the Lord of the harvest would send laborers into his field. The need for ministers in the church was emphasized, and the fact developed that the prayers of the general church on this line are already being answered.

Just at midnight Mrs. Teague sang Tennyson's poem, "Ring Out Wild Bells," music by C. A. Gounod. This was a very impressive feature of the service.

The services at the First Presbyterian extended over exactly one hour. They were very solemn and impressive. The lecture room in which the service was held, was crowded. At the moment of the going of the old year and century and the coming of the new, the congregation bowed in silent prayer.

A Rapidly Increasing Family.
Wilkesboro, N. C., Special, 29th, to Philadelphia Record.

Mrs. Newton McCann gave birth today to four children, two girls and two boys. Eighteen months ago she had triplets. All are well and hearty. Seven children in less than two years is claimed as the world's record.

Woman's Walk on a Wager.
Mme. Alma Heldseth, widow of a journalist, has for a wager just traveled from Christiania to Paris on foot and started without either food or money. On the way she crossed Sweden, Denmark, Germany and part of France. She walked 12 hours a day and at night would call at a farm and offer to work for her board and lodging. Directly she had earned a little money she started again, and in turn she mended clothes, did washing and acted as governess.

Too Large a Bite.
Manchuria being about 800 miles one way and 500 the other, it is no wonder the Russian bear denies having swallowed it at the first gulp. At least two bites at a cherry of that magnitude are to be looked for, says the New York Tribune, and perhaps several more. But there is little doubt that the robust animal will worry it all down sooner or later.

A NEW COMMISSION COMPANY?

REPORTED THAT B. FRANK MEBANE WILL ORGANIZE ONE.

Said That He is Organizing a Company Expected to do a Large Business.

It is said that Mr. B. Frank Mebane, who yesterday resigned the presidency of Coolemees Mills, is organizing a Commission Company for the purpose of handling Southern mill products.

Mr. Mebane was in the city last night, registered at the Guilford. The story is that he met a number of friends there who are to co-operate with him in the organization of the company.

There are already two companies here in this line, the Cone Export and Commission Company and the Hunter Manufacturing and Commission Company.

It is not stated who will be associated with Mr. Mebane in the new company, if it is true that he is organizing one.

The resignation of Dr. George A. Mebane as Secretary of the Coolemees Mills was not accepted at the meeting of the directors yesterday.

FORTUNE IN ONE OIL WELL.

Three Old Irish People in West Virginia Who Are Getting $1,000 a Day.

Weston, W. Va., is the center of the most wonderful oil field that has been opened in the United States in years. Three old Irish people of Weston, as poor as the farm on which they lived, have become suddenly possessed, through no effort of their own, of an income of over $1,000 a day, says the Philadelphia Record.

That income of $1,000 a day is all from one oil well. There are three other wells nearing completion within a few hundred yards of this one, each of which is sure to pour out as much money. And the end is not yet. The land is so unproductive of vegetation that only very poor people would own it, so the Copley heirs, being poor, have a big acreage, room enough for 200 more wells to be sunk.

No one knows in what direction that lake of oil, away down 2,200 feet below the surface, extends. Such pools are of varying size and shape; sometimes only a few hundred yards wide and miles in length; sometimes circular and miles in diameter. There is but one way of finding out—to drill holes down below that lead.

Today the Copley well is the only one tapping the pool. Everybody wants to risk his money in an effort to get a hole into the pool. To that end thousands of people are buying, begging, bulldozing and badgering farmers for miles around the big gusher for the privilege of sinking wells.

The Copley well, which has wrought all this change to Lewis county, came in from the Gordon oil sand at a depth of 2,200 feet on September 24. It was unexpected, and, like a shot from a ten-inch gun, blew away the oil saver and casing head and sent a solid stream of oil six inches in diameter clear over the top of the 80-foot derrick, nearly drowning the workmen.

It flows continually, but, like the geysers, has certain hours out of every 24 to put forth its greatest force. When the oil came 200 250-barrel tanks were put up. They were filled in a little more than an hour.

Three dams were built in Sand Fork creek bed, which, thanks to drought, was dry, the lower dam two miles from the well. These hold a pond of oil two miles long, averaging 60 feet wide and six feet deep. A two-inch pipe line has been carrying away 60 barrels an hour all this time. A four-inch and a six-inch line have been completed. Besides what the pipe line has carried off, and what is in the dam, the well has produced enough to fill 68 250-barrel tanks, one 1,200-barrel tank and one 800-barrel tank, all erected since the well was struck.

Lightning Rod Miles in Length.
Bavaria has a most curious claim to notoriety, which is that it possesses the longest lightning conductor in the world. It rises some yards above the top of the meteorological station on the Zugspitze, the highest point in the German empire, and runs down the side of the mountain to the bottom of Hollenthal, where there is running water all the year round. The length of the rod is five and one-half kilometers—nearly three and a half miles.

A Congressional Competition.
The official ballot in the Eighth district of Virginia bore the names of 15 candidates for representative in congress.

BEHEADED ON THE SAME SPOT

SLAYER OF THE GERMAN MINISTER MEETS HIS FATE.

Executed Today Where He Slew the Minister—The Emperor Anxious for Peace.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Pekin, Jan. 1.—Su Hai, the man who killed Baron Von Ketteler, the German minister to China, last summer, was beheaded today on the scene of his crime in the presence of a large number of spectators. In an interview Li Hung Chang says: "The Emperor desires to comply with all the demands of the powers, but hopes that irritating expeditions will be stopped."

He says it will be possible now to maintain order in the provinces with a small number of Chinese troops. He hopes the allies will agree to keep in Pekin and along the railroads the troops at present there. The Emperor is willing to banish all named by the powers for punishment to the frontier with the penalty of beheading if they return.

Closing Century Party.

Arthur Forbis, Charlie Creech, Charlie Wheeler, Frank Crawford, Vivian Blackburn, Meredith Turner, Hill Hunter, Chaney Eldridge, Martin Douglas, Irving Eldridge.

End of the Century Party.

A number of young folks enjoyed themselves at an End of the Century party given last night by the Misses May at their home on Forbis street. A number of games were indulged in, after which delicious refreshments were served in the dining room.

Among those present were Miss Annie Donnell, Bessie McMaisters, Bertha Corl, Lizzie Tate, Jessie Hughes, Virgie Kendall, Clara Elam, and Miss Burton, of Salisbury; Messrs. Harry Donnell, P. E. Stroud, Peter Watkins, Ernest Clapp, Thomas Sockwell, Will Phipps, Lacey Andrews, Marvin Boyles.

The Dance Last Night.

The dance given in the McAdoo hall last night was a complete success. About twenty-one couples were on the floor and thoroughly enjoyed themselves until the wee sma' hours.

The party was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. G. Sam Bradshaw.

Mrs. Ellington Dead.

Mrs. M. A. J. Ellington died this afternoon at the residence of Mr. M. Jordan, on Asheboro street. She had been paralyzed for some time. The funeral will occur tomorrow at 11 o'clock from West Market church by Rev. L. W. Crawford.

West Deer Hunting.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Denny returned yesterday afternoon from visiting relatives in Red Springs. While there Mr. Denny went hunting for wild geese and deer, but brought back no feathers nor antlers.

THE POPE WILL BE A HUNDRED.

PHYSICIAN SAYS HE STOOD THE LABORS OF THE YEAR WELL.

Has Done an Enormous Amount of Work. To Issue Encyclical on Christian Democracy.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Rome, Jan. 1.—Dr. Lapponi, the chief physician of the Pope, announced today that his Holiness had sustained the fatiguing labors of last year so heroically that he will probably live to be a hundred years old. During the past year he officiated in seventy functions at St. Peter's, received 225 pilgrimages, spoke to over four thousand and personages to whom he gave audience, issued eight encyclicals, and twenty apostolic letters, and composed several poems. The encyclical on christian democracy is completed, but may not be issued for several weeks as the Pope desires to publish it at a time when the world is quiet and able to study it.

THE CUDAHY CASE.

The Mayor of Omaha Says It is Time for the Community to Step in and Take Charge of the Matter.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 31.—A special meeting of the city council was called this afternoon for the purpose of taking measures against the Cudahy abductors. Mayor Moore issued the following statement:

"This case has come to a pass where it is the public's duty to step in and relieve the terrible strain under which the Cudahy family is living. That last letter from the kidnappers puts such a serious coloring on the case that it is not right to expect Mr. Cudahy to continue his offer of $25,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the men who stole his boy.

"I have wired the governor urging him to offer a reward. A special meeting of the council has been called to consider the advisability of appropriating $10,000 for any person who may bring about the conviction of the kidnappers. The county will also be asked to give some money and I have no doubt but we will swell the sum to $25,000.

"It is not comfortable for the Cudahy family to be living under threat that a bullet will end the life of one of their children in case their reward is continued, and law and order demand that an end be brought to such proceedings."

The city council unanimously adopted a concurrent resolution offering a reward of $25,000 for the apprehension and conviction of the desperadoes who abducted Edward Cudahy, Jr., on the night of December 18. For the arrest and conviction of one, the resolution provides a reward of $8,000; for two $15,000 will be paid, and the whole amount is offered for the three principals.

The council also asked Mr. Cudahy to withdraw his offer of a reward of an equal amount for the capture of the criminals. The object of the city's offer is largely to relieve Mr. Cudahy and his family of the fear of reprisals from the bandits and to remove from the police and detectives the restraint they have felt in trailing the bandits on account of the very trying position in which Mr. Cudahy has been placed. The action of the council is generally commended by the citizens of the city.

Departed Friends.

Raleigh Post.
The Fayetteville Observer says: "Before the war fine peaches were grown in Cumberland; we have seen none since."

Except at a few places such as the Van Lindley Nurseries, we believe the same can be said of the entire State. Why is it?

The Horse apple flourished certainly throughout the central section "before the war," but has become extinct. No superior, if its equal, for good vinegar or "apple-jack," has been introduced.

Among peaches we remember as a friend of our youth what was called the Indian peach, large, meaty, juicy, dark red skin and meat yellow with red tinge. We saw a few some years ago, but they came from Georgia. We mourn the departure of these friends of boyhood days.

A TALK WITH MRS. U. S. GRANT

HOW SHE SPENDS HER DAYS IN THE SUNSET OF LIFE.

Touching Reminiscence of her Varied Career—The Accomplishment of General Grant's Chief Desire.

Washington Special to Philadelphia Record.

Mrs. Grant, the widow of the distinguished Union general, has just put the finishing touch, in the way of some pages of reminiscences, to a journal which she kept in California in 1894, while spending a year with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ulysses Grant, which is designed as a gift for her. "California," she declares, "is a glorious state. Its sunsets were an ever-recurring source of pleasure," and as her maid opens the book and reads aloud a description of one of these, one is struck by the beauty of her diction. As we sat together in the bay-window of her pretty drawing-room, overlooking the triangle formed by the intersection of Massachusetts avenue and Q street her busy fingers evolved a wonderful bit of worsted work—a slumber robe for her great-grandson, the little Russian prince.

Time has dealt gently with the woman whose life, interwoven with that of one of the principal actors in the Republic's great drama, could scarcely have been placid, and in her black silk gown, with its soft white trimmings, she might still be described as "elderly." In manner she is kind and motherly, and one wonders that she would have retained her simplicity and naturalness in the artificial atmosphere to which she has been so long exposed.

"When I am in the vein for it," Mrs. Grant says, "I write with great ease, and last evening, spurred by Mary's reminder that the book was not yet finished, I dashed off page after page without stopping. My eyes have failed almost entirely, however, and, spectacles being of no assistance, I can't read what I write. This makes revision difficult, and I decline many overtures from magazines and newspapers for articles. My poor sight, too, deprives me of the pleasure of going into society, which I should very much enjoy. It is embarrassing not to know people, and so I accept no invitations. Still, time doesn't hang heavy upon my hands. Mary reads the newspapers to me every morning, and I knit and take drives, and loll about, and Nellie and I play patience and other games of cards."

Mrs. Grant was silent for a few moments, while the imagination ran quickly over the checkered career lying behind her. The meeting, at the end of her school life, with the man for whom fate had mapped out so wonderful a destiny; the spelling bees and candy-pulls, and all the rest of the rural frolics which marked their early acquaintance.

Then came the proposal on a certain dark night, when a roaring, rushing stream having been crossed they reached the opposite bank in safety, and half the battle being won, the brave lieutenant, who could march undaunted into the cannon's mouth, trembled in putting the fateful question to the father of the girl he loved.

The engagement and long separation were followed by a modest wedding, and the wedding in turn by the life in Detroit. Beating his sword into a pruning hook the young soldier next tried farming at Hard Scrabble, near St. Louis, the log cabin which they occupied, beautified by the housewifery of his faithful helpmeet, being built by himself. The experience during the Civil War, when he summoned her to his side at every suspension of active duties, reads like a romance, and the life at the White House, and the foreign tour succeeding it, when the dramatic personae in such sharply contrasted scenes were presented to crowned heads, like a fairy tale.

"My chief desire, General Grant said, on one of the closing days at Mount McGregor, 'is to leave my wife above want,' and as her voice recalls us to the pretty drawing room, with its rich furnishing and adjacent sentried servant, one feels that his desire has been more than gratified.

"Those were happy, happy years at the White House," Mrs. Grant says, speaking half to herself. "Everybody seemed so contented, and I am sure I was. No administration since then ever exceeded it in elegance and brilliancy. Then came the four years of delightful, I might almost say triumphal travel, and now, though his life has gone out, the light of his great fame, shining upon me through the kindness of those who love and revere him, still warms and cheers me."

is where we stand in the lumber business. At the kicking spot, as it were, in regard to prices.

First comes the owner of the timber. He just woke up to the value of it and wants double last year's prices. Then the sawmill man. He has not been making a fortune and thinks now he should share a little in the general prosperity.

They say to us: "We must have so much for our trees and work." After a while it is "up to you." Don't kick. You don't suppose we have nerve enough to put up prices unless they had first been put up on us. No, indeed. But prices are NOT high. They have been too low and are just now getting reasonable. Your children will be glad to build at double the price it now costs you. It is a trite, but true saying, if you want to build, "Now is the time."

THEY WERE TRUE PATRIOTS

ALL TESTIMONY SAYS THIS OF THE ALAMANCE REGULATORS.

Hon. R. B. Creecy Adds His Endorsement to Maj. Morehead's Position—General Boynton's Statement.

The extracts below are taken from an article in the Elizabeth City Economist, a paper edited by the Nestor of North Carolina journalism, Hon. R. B. Creecy. This patriotic son of North Carolina is now in his 87th year. Much of his life has been spent in labor for his State. He has written much, and is among the very first of those few men who are entirely acquainted with the State's history. So far back as 1856 he published a "Child's History of North Carolina"; in 1857-58 followed the "Early History of the Albemarle Region"; in 1857-60 "The Revolutionary Era in North Carolina"; in 1889-90 and '90 and '91, "Grandfather Tales of North Carolina History." Beside these he has written much of value in the current press, himself having been an editor for many years. Any work that he might do in the way of treating our history would be invaluable. There are a few men yet living, Mr. Creecy among them, who should, for the benefit of the State, write as much as possible from their great store of knowledge of the State's history.

For time at last sets all things even,
And if do but watch the hour,
There never yet was human power,
That could evade if unforgiven.

"There are three events in North Carolina history that have not been sufficiently commemorated: the Battle of Alamance, the Proceedings of the Vestry of St. Paul's church of Edenton, and the Battle of Moore's Creek. Mecklenburg has been more fortunate. Its position was long contested, especially by the Virginia historians, but it has fought its way to public recognition and now lifts its head among the primal events of our Revolutionary history. Even that heroic event was long disputed and some of our most distinguished and faithful North Carolinians doubted its authenticity.

"Alamance has been more unfortunate and longer in having its claims as the germ seed of the Revolution, planted before the Alexanders, the Polks, the Brevards and the other heroes of Mecklenburg had put on the toga of manhood and were fully recognized by the predominance of the testimony.

The sons of the State are now putting Alamance in its true and rightful position as a beacon light in the primal storms of that great event in the world's history that taught mankind the great lesson in free government and made the American mountaineer, a marvel in the world's history. All honor to W. L. Saunders, the stout-hearted North Carolinian. Blessed be his memory. A worthy son of a worthy and reverend father, Rev. Joseph H. Saunders. And also to Hon. Joseph M. Morehead, of Greensboro, long may he live to feel the loving gratitude of every loyal son of North Carolina for his patriotic memorial of James Hunter, General of the Regulators.

"The Regulators were patriots. They resisted oppression of British officeholders. They were outraged and oppressed by unlawful exactions, by the oppressor's scorn, the proud man's contumely. They protested again and again against these infamous acts of the British governments. At last, after their patience was exhausted, they resorted to force, and Tryon's soldiers overcame them on the bloody field of Alamance, subdued them in battle, with death on both sides, hung them after a drum-head trial and executed the prisoners without mercy. Their grievances were afterward acknowledged by Tryon, the 'wolf of North Carolina,' as the Indians designated him, and by his successor, Governor Martin. And now, the victims of this flagrant oppression by the agents of the British government, cry from the ground for justice from their countrymen who sprang from the seed their brave hearts had planted. Let their countrymen who have reaped the fruits of their heroism and sufferings, make requital by justice and blessings, late, but timely, on their long misrepresented memories.

"The Battle of Alamance, on the soil of North Carolina, on the sixteenth of May, 1771, was the reville drumbeat of the Revolution, and the blood then shed, on the open battlefield and on scaffold, was the blood of the martyrs of liberty; the germ seed of Mecklenburg's Declaration, of the patriotic Protest of old St. Paul at Edenton, of the victorious fight at Moore's Creek, and of Guilford and Yorktown."

In the above article Mr. Creecy refers very appreciatively to the pamphlet, on the "Life and Times of James Hunter," "General" of the Regulators, by Major Jos. M. Morehead, of this city. This sketch has received the highest endorsement. It is a complete proof that the Regulators were patriots, and the forerunners of the Revolution, as Mr. Creecy says. We are informed that there are yet a number of copies of the pamphlets on hand, which the author would desire to sell for the benefit of the colonial monument now sought to be erected at the Guilford Battle Ground.

Guilford county was in the very heart of the Regulator movement, and all the families of this section whose ancestors have lived here should be in possession of this sketch.

In this connection we reproduce an extract from the speech of General Boynton, a distinguished son of Massachusetts, a descendant of a "Minute Man" who fought at Lexington, delivered at the last Battle Ground celebration:

"Every American should esteem it a high privilege to take part in public exercises wherever this day commemorating our National Independence is celebrated. It is an exceptional privilege, as well as high honor, to so participate in this Commonwealth of North Carolina, upon whose soil the first battle against unjust taxation was fought in the Colonial Era, where first Declaration of Independence was issued, and especially upon this memorable battle ground—the high water mark of foreign invasion—from which that tide ebbed swiftly away to British surrender at Yorktown. Behold the mile posts which history has set up along that shining way which led straight on to American Independence—Alamance, Mecklenburg, King's Mountain, Cowpens, Guilford Courthouse, Yorktown!"

"In celebrating the Revolutionary period, we should not forget that the fires of patriotism, of defiance to British authority and of independence burned brightly in North Carolina long before Lexington, or Concord, or Bunker Hill; or that the last Legislature of this State to recognize royal authority was that of March 1774."

This acknowledges the claim that the fires of the Revolution burned brightly in North Carolina long before their actual outbreak in war. This claim—the glory of Alamance, Mecklenburg, Moore's Creek Bridge—is what it is sought to commemorate in a colonial monument at the Guilford Battle Ground. The real significance of this period of history is too little understood, and there is nothing that will so well clarify and impress it upon the people who ought to know and understand it, as the erection of this monument with its proposed tablets.

A LIFE AND DEATH FIGHT

Mr. W. A. Hines, of Manchester, Iowa, writing of his almost miraculous escape from death says: "Exposure after measles induced serious lung trouble, which ended in consumption. I had frequent hemorrhages and coughed night and day. All my doctors said I must soon die. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which completely cured me. I would not be without it even if cost $5 a bottle. Hundreds have used it on my recommendation and all say it never fails to cure throat, chest and lung troubles." Regular size 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free at C. E. Holton's drug store.

ILL FARES THE LAND, ETC.

When Lord Somebody converted the village in which Oliver Goldsmith was reared into a deer park he perhaps didn't dream that he was instigating a text for the politicians of the good year 1900, A. D. But he was, for when the stubby little Irish poet went back and beheld the change, he wrote his best poem, in which occurred the lines:

"Ill fares the land to hastening ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates and men decay."

And so the enemies of the money power and other noxious things have quoted these lines up till now with a zest that comes only when a sweet morsel is rolled under the tongue. That zest has not been at all lessened by the fact that the proposition contains two conditions that must be fulfilled before its conclusion is permissible. These two conditions are that men must decay and wealth accumulate. When both of these have happened, then, and not until then, is that land a prey to hastening ills.

It is also noticeable that the poet, even in the midst of his ruined village, did not assert that one of these conditions depended upon the other. But not so with the latter day philosophers of the lately departed century. They either boldly assume that men necessarily decay where wealth accumulates, or quietly ignore the latter condition of the proposition, and conclude that the accumulation of wealth alone puts a nation in the position of being a prey to hastening ills. Both of these conclusions are proven absurd by the history of every civilized nation on earth.

To say nothing of the accumulation of wealth in England and the consequent improved condition of her people from king to peasant, let us glance for a moment at our own experience. Never in our history as a nation have we been so powerful, nor our national life so robust. Never have we been so willing and so able to shoulder our part of the world's burden in maintaining and extending the blessings of civilization. Never has our government done so much for the citizen as it is doing today, and never have our citizens done half so much for each other as they are doing today. Never have the fruits of labor been so abundant, so certain or so constant. Never before did the individual have so many rights, so many privileges, but more important, so many possibilities. A short while ago philanthropy never so much as dreamed of what is actually being accomplished today. Never was personal faith and integrity at a higher premium, never did confidence of man in man stand for more than now. Confidence was never a greater collateral than it is today. These are the practical results of manhood. We must therefore conclude that manhood has not decayed. Yet wealth has accumulated a thousandfold.

"Joy Jostles Sorrow" is the way the Raleigh Post heads an article. Does the Post claim to report an exclusive incident?

China accepts the peace terms. O course she does. What else should she do? But the sly old thing will do to watch yet.

Six stanzas suffice friend Alf. Austin, poet laureate of England, in which to celebrate the passing of the last century. The poet laureate of Greensboro is yet to hear from.

NORTHERN CAPITAL.

The Telegram made a remark a day or two ago regarding the well known fact that the South's rapidly growing industries were inaugurated and maintained by home capital. Since then we have seen copied in the Norfolk Landmark, the following statement by a Raleigh correspondent of the New York Evening Post:

"Many people, especially in the North, have an idea that a large percentage of the capital invested in Southern mills is owned by Northern people. The per cent. is less than 15 in North Carolina and South Carolina, but a little more in Georgia. In Alabama, possibly 20 per cent. is about the proportion. Until last year it was only 8 per cent. in North Carolina. But the percentage of Northern investments in cotton mills of the South is rapidly increasing—doubled, as you see, in two years—and Northern investors are seeking investments of this character. As a rule, however, they prefer to get into an old-established company, and nearly always require that much (generally 50 per cent. if possible) of the stock in a new mill they take hold of shall be owned by local people. Few mills in the South are owned entirely by Northern capitalists."

The South is passing beyond the point of having to ask Northern capital as a favor to come down and take hold with us. We have shown our friends the opportunity for investment here, and that is a practical object lesson that is worth all talk. The capital that comes South hereafter comes as it goes elsewhere, because it brings satisfactory returns.

A CENTURY POEM.

A dinner was given in New York last night under the auspices of the workmen of New York, called "Labor's Greeting to the Twentieth Century." Edwin Markham, author of "The Man With the Hoe," read a "Century poem." It is as follows:

"We stand here at the end of mighty years,
And a great wonder rushes on the heart,
While cities rose and blossomed into dust,
While shadowy lines of Kings were blown to air—
What was the purpose brooding on the world,
Through the large leisure of the centuries?
And what the end—failure or victory?
"Lo, man has laid his sceptre on the stars,
And sent his spell upon the continents.
The heavens confess their secrets,
And the stones
Silent as God, publish their mystery.
Man calls the lightnings from their secret place,
To crumple up the spaces of the world,
And snatch the jewels from the flying hours.
The wild white smoking horses of the sea
Are startled by his thunders. The world-powers
Crowd round to be the lackeys of the King.
"His hand has torn the veil of the Great Law,
The law that was made before the worlds—before
That first far whisper on the ancient deep;
The law that swings Arcturus on the North
And hurles the soul of man upon the way.
"But what avail, O builders of the world,
Unless ye build a safety for the soul?
Man has put harness on Leviathan
And hooks in his incorrigible jaws;
And yet the perils of the street remain.
Out of the whirlwind of the cities rise
Lean Hunger and Worm of Misery,
The heart's break and the cry of mortal fears.

"But hark, the bugles blowing on the peaks;
And hark, a murmur as of many feet,
The cry of captains, the divine alarm—
Look! the last son of Time comes hurrying on,
The strong young Titan of Democracy
With swinging step he takes the open road,
In love with the winds that beat his hairy breast,
Baring his sunburnt strength to all the world,
He casts his eyes around with jovial glance;
Seizes the tracks of old tradition;
scans
With rebel heart the books of pedigree;

Peers into the face of Privilege and cries,
'Why are you halting in the path of man?
Is it your shoulder bears the human load?
Do you draw down the rains of the sweet heaven
And keep the green things growing?'
'Back to Hell.'

"We know at last the future is secure;
God is descending from Eternity,
And all things, good and evil, build the road.
Yes, down in the thick of things, the men of greed
Are thumping the inhospitable clay.
By wondrous toils the men without the dream,
Led onward by a something unawares,
Are laying the foundations of the dream,
The Kingdom of fraternity foretold."

HE THINNED NOT WISELY,
LY, BUT TOO MUCH.

Ah! distinctly I remember,
It was only last November,
That they chased me thro' the back-yard

And across the old barn floor;
Valiantly and well I fought me
Till at last the villains caught me
And proceeded then to trot me
To the axe beside the door—
But, abashed, they let me go for
I was bones and nothing more—
Skin and bones and nothing more!
Now I see it's past December,
And, no doubt, they will dismember
Me, for all my fat friends
Have gone to that other shore.
I've grown pale from apprehension
For of late some marked attention
Makes me think it's their intention
To cut off my legs and serve me
As a reed-bird from the store—
Just a reed bird—nothing more!
—Geo V. Hobart.

THE CHIEF FORESTER

Present Incumbent of the Office Created by Congress.

Branch of the Department Established in 1876 to Provide for the Distribution and Disposition of Timber.

It is only within the past few years that forestry has been recognized as a profession in the United States. It acquired this dignity with the graduation of Mr. Gifford Pinchot from Yale college in 1889, for Mr. Pinchot was the first American to devote a keen intelligence and liberal education to a solution of the problem of the distribution and disposition of the timber of this country. He came naturally by his interest in forestry. His father, Mr. James W. Pinchot, of Grey Towers, Milford, Pa., has for years encouraged in every possible way the intelligent conservation of the forests, writes J. D. Whelpley, in Harper's Weekly.

The Pinchot family founded and donated $150,000 to the Yale forest school, and the summer school in this branch of college work is held at Mr. Pinchot's place in Connecticut. When Mr. Gifford Pinchot graduated from Yale the value of his services was at once recognized in a number of directions. He worked out a forestry plan for Biltmore, the great North Carolina estate of the Vanderbilts. He was made a member of the national forestry commission, and undertook for the government a special study of the forest reserves. The permanent need of his services by the government was quickly recognized, and July 1, 1898, he was appointed chief forester of the United States.

The division of forestry is one branch of the department of agriculture. It was established potentially, but not actually, in 1876, by the appointment of Dr. Franklin B. Hough, of New York, to prepare a report on various forest matters under the direction of the commissioner of agriculture. The position of chief forester was created by act of congress ten years later.

Cooperation with other government bodies interested in forestry is a marked feature of the work of the division. It has assisted and been assisted very greatly by the forest division of the United States geological survey, which is engaged in mapping and describing the forest reserves, and it has undertaken, at the request of the secretary of the interior, the preparation of working plans for the 47,000,000 acres of national forest reserves, although, owing to the unfortunate separation of government-forest work into three parts, it has nothing to do with their administration. Applications for positions as student assistants have been received from more than 250 men for this summer's work. Of these less than 60 were selected for appointment. The total force of the division in office and field at present is nearly 100.

The work of the forestry experts is most practical. American plans had to be devised, for conditions are different in this country from those prevailing in any other. In Germany, for instance, where a great deal of attention is paid to forestry, labor is cheap and wood is dear. In the United States labor is high and wood is cheap. Lumbermen have been shown they were losing seven per cent. of their product by cutting high stumps. The system has in consequence been changed nearly everywhere.

The forestry division has cooperated with several important railroad systems in introducing a novel feature of economy. It is proposed that these railroads shall raise tie and pole timber on a large scale on their nonutilized right of way. This action is due to the failure of the natural supply of this material in all except the recently settled portions of the United States. About 1,000,000 acres of timber are consumed annually by railroads in building and repairing, and at the present rate of timber depletion the increased cost of such material will soon be a serious factor in railroad economy. The Santa Fe system has already tried the experiment suggested, and the results obtained have done much to stimulate interest. This road planted 1280 acres in catalpas 15 years ago. The total expense was $128,000, but it is estimated that in ten years more this tract will have produced $2,500,000 worth of poles, etc.

One purpose of the division is to demonstrate the value of tree plantations to land owners, especially those in the treeless regions of the west. The offer to give advice and furnish working plans to persons desiring to plant forest trees, made last year by the division, has met with immediate response from the farmers of the country. Nearly 150 applications have been received, and 40 were furnished with plans in time for use this spring. A still larger number have written for advice in cases where personal inspection by experts was not needed. The treeless states were quickest to avail themselves of the offer, Kansas leading with 40 applications.

When threatened by pneumonia or any other lung trouble, prompt relief is necessary, as it is dangerous to delay. We would suggest that One Minute Cough Cure be taken as soon as indications of having taken cold are noticed. It cures quickly and its early use prevents consumption. Howard Gardner.

A GOOD THING.

German Syrup is the special prescription of Dr. A. Boschee, a celebrated German physician, and is acknowledged to be one of the most fortunate discoveries in medicine. It quickly cures coughs, colds and all lung troubles of the severest nature, removing, as it does, the cause of the affection and leaving the parts in a strong and healthy condition. It is not an experimental medicine, but has stood the test of years, giving satisfaction in every case, which its rapidly increasing sale every season confirms. Two million bottles sold annually. Boschee's German Syrup was introduced in the United States in 1868, and is now sold in every town and village in the civilized world. Three doses will relieve any ordinary cough. Price 75 cts. Such little pills as DeWitt's Little Early Risers are very easily taken, and they are wonderfully effective in cleansing the liver and bowels. Howard Gardner.

"MY FATHER ROBBED YOU, SIR."*THUS SPOKE YOUNG BURTY IN TURNING BURGLAR OVER TO POLICE.

Saw His Father Come Out of a Store and Then Arrested Him, Followed by His Mother.

Philadelphia Record.

To brand his own father a felon and surrender him to the police, thus exposing him to the danger of a long term in the penitentiary, was the lot that yesterday fell to Emil Burty, of No. 406 Hutchinson street. The Burty home is directly in the rear of the residence of Joseph Fury, who lives over his small grocery store, at No. 921 Callowhill street. Just before the store was closed Thursday night young Burty saw a man climb into the Fury home through a second-story window. Burty at first resolved to notify the police, but he changed his mind and awaited developments instead. The grocer closed his store and went upstairs. Young Burty kept a close watch on the place and for a long time nothing unusual happened. He was about to go into his home when he saw the door leading into the store slowly open and a man appeared.

FOUND BURGLAR TO BE HIS FATHER.

The man looked up and down the street, and, seeing no one, he stepped out on the pavement. Young Burty quietly summoned his mother and when the thief passed their place of concealment the boy recognized him as his own father. Mother and son came out from their hiding place and followed the husband and father. The fugitive walked to Ninth street and thence to a house on Willow street, which he entered.

While the mother and son were watching outside the Willow street house, Policeman Osborne, of the Eighth district, who had found the grocery door open, was arousing Fury to tell him that a thief had visited his store. It was found that the money drawer had been broken open and the contents removed. The policeman and grocer were pursuing their investigation when young Burty, holding his father by the arm, entered the store. The mother had walked behind.

"My father has robbed you, Mr. Fury," said young Burty, "and he has the money in his pockets." The boy then related how he had seen the burglar enter the house and told of the discovery that the thief was his father.

The elder Burty was taken to the Central Police Station and arraigned before Magistrate Cunningham, who committed him to prison without bail, pending trial.

FOUND DEAD.

Fitzhugh Lee's Former Private Secretary Kills Himself.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 31.—Cazneau McLeod was found dead in the bath room of his residence here this morning, with a bullet hole in his head and a pistol lying by his side. He had evidently committed suicide. Why he should have done so is a mystery. Mr. McLeod was a son of Colonel McLeod, of the United States navy. He was 56 years of age and was born in Galveston, Texas. He was a private in the Confederate army during the latter part of the civil war.

After the close of the war and a period of study at the University of Virginia, he settled in Savannah, where he remained until 1872, the year of his arrival in Richmond, which has been his home since. He was private secretary to Fitzhugh Lee, and filled the position with distinction. He had also been secretary of the tobacco exchange here for about 20 years and held that position at the time of his death. He married, soon after the war, Miss Virginia Marshall, daughter of William Marshall, long British vice consul here. She and four children survive him.

German Syrup is the special prescription of Dr. A. Boschee, a celebrated German physician, and is acknowledged to be one of the most fortunate discoveries in medicine. It quickly cures coughs, colds and all lung troubles of the severest nature, removing, as it does, the cause of the affection and leaving the parts in a strong and healthy condition. It is not an experimental medicine, but has stood the test of years, giving satisfaction in every case, which its rapidly increasing sale every season confirms. Two million bottles sold annually. Boschee's German Syrup was introduced in the United States in 1868, and is now sold in every town and village in the civilized world. Three doses will relieve any ordinary cough. Price 75 cts. 8177—Girls' Blouse Costume.
4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years.

GIRLS' BLOUSE COSTUME, NO. 8177.

Blouse suits, designed after the sailor model, are the most stylish, comfortable and durable frocks that can be worn by little girls. The one illustrated is made of light brown cheviot trimmed with fancy brown and white braid. It includes all the best features and is up-to-date in every detail.

The skirt is shaped with five gores fitting smoothly around the waist, having two inverted plaits at each side of the center closing. It is attached to the lower edge of a lining body, which is faced with cheviot to simulate a shield and is completed with a standing collar. The skirt is trimmed with fancy braid.

The full blouse is fitted by shoulder and under-arm seams, the fronts closing invisibly under a double box plait. It is finished with a sailor collar, which forms pointed revers in front. The fullness at the waist is adjusted on a narrow belt.

The bishop sleeves are shaped with inside seam only; the upper portion is close-fitting and the fullness at the lower edge arranged on a plain wristband. The belt, collar and wristbands are finished with fancy braid.

Blue or red serge with white trimmings make attractive little suits and are the favorite colors for general wear. At present narrow gold braid is generously applied on the more elaborate blouse costumes.

To make the costume for a girl of eight years will require two and one-half yards of forty-four-inch material. The pattern, No. 8177, is cut in sizes for girls four, six, eight, ten and eleven years.

BRONZE GAUZE FOR USE ON EVENING GOWNS.

One of the novelties brought out this season for dancing gowns, chiefly for use by matrons or girls who are not in their first winter, is bronze gauze. It is used simply over silk or satin of the same color, or it is enhanced with the use of gold spangles. Do not put silvery spangles or decorations upon bronze gauze; any added trimmings should be either of velvet fur, white or green; or if metal ornamentation is employed it should be of gilt.

THE LATEST.

A very chic costume seen at a debutante's coming-out tea is of chocolate brown velvet, rich in quantity and trimmed in an entirely novel style. Instead of any applied decoration, the entire trimming is achieved by rows of machine stitching on the edges, and used as an ornamental border. This is not limited to straight rows arranged in a series, but the stitching is done in arabesque patterns, circles and curved lines, producing some very happy effects. This stitched velvet is extremely good style—"well worn," as the importers will tell you.

THE WIDE BELT.

The elastic belt of handsome black silk can be had now in the width desired. Formerly only narrow girdles were obtainable in silk elastic. Where one has a plump figure a close-fitting elastic belt is desirable, for, although every one knows the fashionable waist has increased from one-and-a-half inches to two inches, on account of the straight-front corsets, still we are satisfied with that extension of zone measurements. Hand-clasps are stitched to the new black belt, which is quite wide and fits in precision to the waist.

THE MILITARY COLLAR.

A tailor-made cloth gown of greenish bronze color has the jacket made the new military collar slightly flaring under the chin. This is almost a double collar. The neckband, which is the seemingly phrase for the article which shop girls term a "choker," opens in front to show a half-neckband of white or pale blue. The open fronts of the neckband are turned back to show the beautiful display of braiding of silver or gold on silken cord. Sometimes a little lace scarf covers the half-band, and then the ends are loosely knotted and fall down in front.

THE PINKED OUT RUCHED.

Taffeta trims a white gauze dress for a young girl in charming fashion. A ruching of taffeta with pinked-out edges is put on very full at the hem of the skirt, which it causes to "bouillonner," as the phrase goes, about the feet. White silk is used for these pretty ruches. An all-white costume is the proper thing for a young girl in her first season, and is so worn even when it happens she "lights up" better with a touch of vivid color. This is supplied by means of "floral garnitures," as the pretentious expression goes.

HER LACE COLLAR.

A collar of Renaissance lace is most useful in rendering an otherwise plain costume up-to-date. If you go to take a family dinner with friends your dress will be made fit for the occasion by the addition of a pretty broad collar of lace and cuffs. You can make the cuffs yourself. The new shape of the collar is rather square in front, and fastens in the back. The deep Louis Treize collars of lace usually called after Anne of Austria will redeem a half-worn dress and convert it into a modish costume.

To the Public:—A large number of the best business people insured in the Aetna Life Insurance Company at the low prices, for 1900, which ended last week, and now hold policies in one of the best companies at a lower rate than can be gotten in the future.

Those who said "not today—see me tomorrow," have lost a golden opportunity by trusting that old and renowned thief—procrastination. You would better take hold promptly when the Aetna Band Wagon passes your way again. W. W. Wood will handle the reins again next year. If you get aboard he will land you safely on the twentieth century new policies and new prices that will be up-to-date in all respects.

To the many policy holders who favored him with their business in the year now closed he is profoundly grateful and congratulates them upon having written on the low rates in the old century.

He now invites the public attention to the new policies, the new year, and the new century, wishing abundant and abiding prosperity to all mankind.
